"Regardless of the method they choose to vote or who they choose to support, voters should recognize that there is more than just the U.S. President that they can vote for. There are many other offices on the ballot this year, and the outcome of those races will have as much or greater impact on them, their families, and neighbors' everyday life," said Vice-Chair Lisa Deeley. "I encourage all citizens to vote, and vote in every office up and down the ballot."
